His job: North America’s water

Bob Sinkler served a 30-year career as a combat engineer in the U.S. Army, rising to the rank of colonel. In the Corps of Engineers his assignments included command of the Rock Island District, oversight of building beefed-up hurricane protection of the New Orleans area after Hurricane Katrina and chief of strategic initiatives for the Corps’ commander.

After retiring from the Army, Bob leveraged his extensive knowledge of water-related construction to become the director of North American water infrastructure with The Nature Conservancy. He explained how he does that during his Sept. 28 visit to Bettendorf Rotary.

To support TNC’s mission of working to preserve the natural environment and the plants and animals that live in it, Bob leads the organization's emphasis on focusing America's investment in water-related infrastructure on "a basin-scale systems approach that incorporates natural solutions and sustainable design." This approach is especially applied to "large river systems, watersheds, wetlands and lakes" – such as the Mississippi River; Bob is working to establish his headquarters in the Quad Cities because of the river. (He and his wife also decided to retire here after his assignment as commander of the Corps' Rock Island district.)

Acknowledging the current U.S. commitment to water conservation is "woefully underfunded," he is striving to double the country's investment in water-resources infrastructure by 2020. Labeling himself – and TNC's philosophy – as "ruthlessly pragmatic," he is committed to including all forces that have a stake in water issues in their solutions. Every point of view needs to be "recognized and incorporated" in solutions in order for them to work, he emphasized.

The Nature Conservancy has about a million members and works on nature-conservation projects in all 50 states and more than 30 countries, he said.

Announcements...

→ We got a full District 6000 grant:

President Jonna

Schuler announced that BRC has received a $5,000 grant from District 6000 to help fund our community-service project to install five sets of chimes at Faye's Field at the Learning Campus. Work on the chime installations will begin in spring 2017, she added.

→ BRC Charities Board: Kevin Kraft made two announcements:

→ The deadline is today – Sept. 30 – for applications from non-profit groups for the current cycle of grants.

→ Donations to the endowment fund have exceeded this year's goal, hitting $10,500 with some pledges still to be collected. The multi-year campaign to boost the endowment fund will help ensure enough money to sustain all programs, if ever regular fundraising efforts fall short.

→ Dictionary project sign-ups: Dr. Jim Spelhaug again passed around clipboards for members to sign up to hand out a personal dictionary to each 4th grade student in Bettendorf, Pleasant Valley and the private schools in the city.

After his efforts at the meeting, these opportunities remain unfilled:

→ Bridgeview Elementary, LeClaire, Wednesday, Oct. 12: 1:45-2 and 2-2:15 p.m.

→Lourdes Catholic, Bettendorf, Monday, Oct. 10: 2:45-3 p.m.

→Morning Star Academy, Bettendorf, Wednesday, Oct. 12: 1:30-1:45 p.m.

→Paul Norton Elementary, Bettendorf, Thursday, Oct. 13: 1:30-1:45 p.m.

If you can volunteer to fill one of these service opportunities, please contact Jim (spelhaugjim@pleasval.k12.ia.us).

This is truly a rewarding opportunity to serve youth in our community in a most meaningful way. [I have handed out dictionaries almost every year since joining BRC – and each time at least one child, and usually more, touched me with how much he or she appreciated the dictionary. I join Jim in urging you to volunteer. Ed. Fred]

As in past years, Jim will contact every volunteer with hand-out details and reminders.

→One Rotary Summit: President Jonna urged members to sign up to attend this District 6000 training workshop scheduled for 5:30-9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, at the West Liberty, Iowa, Community Center. There's no fee, but the registration deadline is Monday, Oct. 3, to get an accurate count for the free 5:30 supper. To register, email dis6000admin@Lisco.com or call (877) 976-8279.

→All-QC Rotary “Service for Success” project is Thursday, Oct. 13. The project, which will benefit Kids Against Hunger, brings Rotarians from across the community to the Rogalski Center at St. Ambrose University to assemble box meals for the poor. Rotarians will pay $10 and guests are free. The project runs 5:30-9 p.m.

→A note of thanks from Dick Schillig for BRC's help with Run with Carl:

The 22nd annual Run with Carl was held Labor Day, Sept. 5, at the Bettendorf Life Fitness Center. This was the second year Run with Carl was managed and directed by a special partnership between the Bettendorf and Pleasant Valley community schools. Thanks to the precedents established by Bettendorf Rotary in prior years this year's running went off without a hitch on a beautiful Labor Day morning.

Close to 1,000 people participated in this year's event. Race directors Dan White and Eric Willis did an absolutely wonderful job directing the 1- and ½-mile kids runs and the 5-mile and 5-K run/walk events.

Overall participation from the community – including sponsors, volunteers and promoters – was tremendous! There is no better way of promoting Rotary to the community than through Run with Carl!

Thank you, Bettendorf Rotary, for continuing your support over the years. And thanks to the many individual Rotarians who volunteered on race day. [Apologies for the delay in publishing this note; Ed. Fred]
