Ozzy explores the world of vocational service again

When Rich “Ozzy” Oswald was on the program schedule (Nov. 30, 2016) to present a program on vocational services, everyone present ended up learning new things about each other. In a sort of “musical tables,” we moved around the room and shared stories of how we became Bettendorf Rotarians.

For the March 15 meeting, Ozzy returns with another fresh look at vocational services. It could be another opportunity to become better acquainted with each other... or maybe something else...

Come and learn!

A new, QC way of mentoring

In just five months of existence, a Quad-City non-profit organization, Lead(h)er, whose mission is “to connect young professional women with experienced leaders to fuel career and community engagement,” has already paired some 80 young professional women with community leaders who act as their mentors, said Melissa Pepper, the group’s founder and our March 8 speaker.

To meet the dual objectives of propelling the young women’s career and community involvement, Lead(h)er conducts a program called “Strike a Match.” It approaches mentoring in three ways, Melissa said:

→”Our matches are intentional” – both would-be mentors and “mentees” complete a 10-question survey, and their answers help guide the matches.
 →”We multiply your network” – Lead(h)er members expand their acquaintance with both the QC community and influential established members of it.
 →”We deliver personalized attention” – again guided by survey results, and after individual training sessions, mentors help their “matches” meet personal goals at this early stage of their time in the QC workforce.

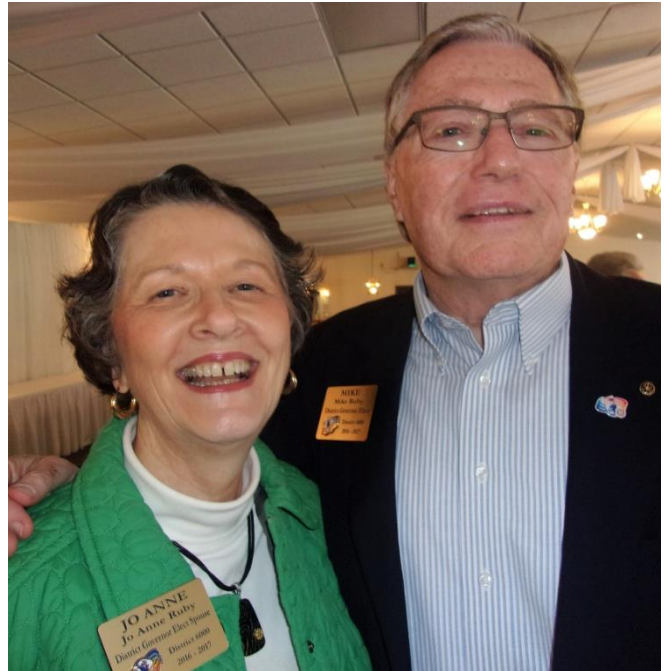

Melissa conceived the idea for Lead(h)er after working at a series of jobs, observing how people interacted in them – and then seeing several close friends leave the QC to work elsewhere. “I wanted to give young women a seat at the table,” she said, at the same time she was helping them “get more involved in the community so they’d want to stay here.”

Melissa is director of marketing and client relations at the Lane & Waterman law firm in Davenport. She and her husband met in the spring of their senior year at Augustana College.

To learn more about Lead(h)er, visit www.leadherqc.org. The current design is a first attempt, she emphasized – so “come back again” in a couple weeks.

Special visitors...

→District 6000 Governor-elect Mike Ruby and JoAnne visited, from their home club, Muscatine Rotary. BRC is the 51st club in the district that the Rubys have visited this year – and they’ll return early this fall, after Mike becomes governor. “You are a very important part of the District 6000 family,” he said. He also promoted attendance at the Rotary International Conference in June in Atlanta – “just a short drive down the road (compared to recent conferences held overseas). It’s an opportunity to see more than 40,000 delegates from more than 200 nations,” he commented. “You really get the big picture of what Rotary does.”

Announcements...

We are proud to be Americans now!”

The meeting opened...

singing of the day's patriotic song, “God Bless America.” President Jonna led the Pledge of Allegiance and Moments of Silence, during which we wished Dave Deuth continued recovery.

After introductions, Tom and Deana renewed the songfest with two verses of “The Rotary Bell” and, with a nod to the nearness of St. Patrick's Day, “My Wild Irish Rose.”
