Next meeting:

Wednesday, April 26, 2017,
At Tanglewood Pavilion

State Rep. Gary Mohr to report on 2017 session

One important benefit of being a Bettendorf Rotarian is the opportunity for face-to-face, first-name interaction with leaders such as Iowa State Rep. Gary Mohr – a fellow Bettendorf Rotarian and the scheduled speaker at the April 26 meeting (assuming the 2017 session adjourns). Gary will present a roundup and assessment of the 2017 session of the Iowa State Legislature – his first as the representative from Bettendorf.

Recently, the legislature has approved bills banning abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy and allowing the sale of fireworks in Iowa. Earlier in the session, legislators wrestled with large cuts from next year’s budget, made necessary by revenue shortfalls caused by declines in the agriculture industry.

This guide introduces newcomers to “everything you need to know” about our city.

BBN aids growth of city business

Richard Pokora is vice president of the Bettendorf Business Network, and pastor of Bettendorf’s Redeemer Lutheran Church – and he spoke to us about the BBN at our April 19 meeting.

The BBN “intends to serve the more than 900 merchants and service providers in the greater Bettendorf, Iowa, area,” according to its Website. The impetus to create an organization to provide that service grew out of three occurrences, Richard explained:

→ The demolition of The Lodge hotel. For years, Richard explained, The Lodge – a few blocks south of Redeemer Lutheran Church on Utica Ridge Road – was the meeting place of the Iowa QC Rotary Club, of which he was a member. Over the years, the hotel deteriorated and, despite the best efforts of Richard and other neighbors to support it, eventually it closed its doors and faced the wrecking ball. “Trying to help, and be a positive force for the neighborhood, was difficult and frustrating,” Richard commented.

→ Demolition of scores of business buildings in downtown Bettendorf as part of the I-74 bridge project. “That’s been hard to see,” Richard said, describing how, in his 38 years of ministry here, he has gotten to know the owners and workers in the small, independent businesses downtown, “who are so dedicated to serving their customers.”

→ The end of an organization dedicated to Bettendorf business advocacy with the absorption of the Bettendorf Chamber of Commerce into the consolidated QC C of C. “I think we lost something,” he said, recounting how the Bettendorf Council within the QC C of C dwindled away shortly after consolidation. “What’s going to take care of Bettendorf?”

So he and a growing list of business owners – primarily focused downtown, but open to anyone in Bettendorf, he said – organized the BBN. The group has taken on such projects as beautification of the downtown (which Bettendorf Rotary has helped). To support its three-part goal – “help members succeed in their businesses, create a vibrant economic environment that makes success possible and advocate for civic projects and programs that benefit the general community” – the BBN has created working groups and regularly offers such events as these:

→ Monthly “First Tuesday” meetings at the Hilton Garden Inn offer lunch and an hour-long program. Last month, our own Steve Sorensen shared management info from his consultant perspective, and the May meeting will feature Joe Taylor of the QC Convention and Visitors Bureau.

→ “Bettendorf Connect” events, such as one (today), 5-7 p.m., April 20 at the Nelson Brothers Agency on Lincoln Road, provide business owners with networking opportunities as well as “tasty appetizers and a selection of wine and beer.”

The chimes along Rotary Row at Faye's Field awaited children to come along and play them on a gloomy afternoon after the April 19 Rotary meeting.

Announcements...

➔ Dedication of chimes at Rotary Row at Faye's Field: President Jonna Schuler urged BRC members to attend the dedication of the Rotary Row chimes and drums at Faye's Field, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Friday, May 5. This musical walk along the east side of Faye's Field – 2850 Learning Campus Drive – features four sets of all-weather aluminum chimes and a set of hand drums, complete with mallets, just waiting to be played. Bettendorf Rotary and the Rotary Foundation donated the musical instruments, with the support of the Bettendorf Park Board, the Bettendorf Public Library Foundation Board, the Family Museum Foundation Board, and Bettendorf City Council.

“The Rotary’s focus on our area’s young people has made this a perfect opportunity for a partnership with Bettendorf,” President Jonna said in a public announcement of the donation. “Rotary Row enhances a beautiful green space, which is a great destination for families,” who often use Faye’s Field for picnics, reading and children’s activities. The field is the site of weekly outdoor concerts in the summer.

Faye’s Field was named after Faye Clow, who led the Bettendorf Public Library for 30 years during which she played an integral role in developing Bettendorf’s Learning Campus. She was the first female president of the Bettendorf Rotary, 1993-94. She retired from the library in 2008 and died in 2011.
